Georgia-Pacific Supply Chain Internship

Georgia-Pacific

REAL SUCCESS

"My GP internship gave me experience in a large production facility. I was able to see how the supply chain functions from raw material to finished product, and earned a full-time position."

-Andrew
University of Tennessee

"I had the role and responsibilities of a full-time employee."

-Jennifer
Michigan State University

"This internship was an incredible opportunity to get hands-on experience in a modern and complex supply chain. You are responsible for vital parts of GP's supply chain while gaining essential skills and knowledge to succeed in your career."

-Brad
University of Wisconsin-Madison

IT ALL STARTS WITH YOU

Georgia-Pacific is one of the world's leading manufacturers and marketers of building products, tissue, packaging, paper, cellulose and related chemicals. With renowned brands such as Quilted Northern® and Angel Soft® tissues, Brawny® and Sparkle® paper towels, and Dixie® tabletop products, it's estimated that at least one Georgia-Pacific consumer product is used in 85 percent of homes nationwide.

Before these brands are welcomed into each household, it takes an experienced team of supply chain professionals to make the process possible. The collaborative team is involved with demand, production and distribution planning; mill and facility operations; transportation contract negotiations and operations; warehousing and logistics operations; strategic sourcing; procurement and more.

The Georgia-Pacific supply chain internship offers firsthand involvement and personal mentorship through real business operations to help you get started. The company's Market-Based Management® business philosophy encourages every employee to challenge the status quo, create greater value and experience a more rewarding career.
